ERP Document

Preamble: Enterprise resource planning (ERP) is a term for a category of software that businesses use to oversee routine operations like accounting, purchasing, and compliance. Enterprise performance management software, which aids in planning, budgeting, forecasting, and reporting an organization's financial results, is also a component of a full ERP suite.

ERP systems facilitate the exchange of data between numerous corporate activities and bind them all together. ERP systems avoid data duplication and ensure data integrity with a single source of truth by gathering an organization's shared transactional data from several sources. ERP systems are essential for managing enterprises of all sizes and in all industries today, including educational institutions. ERP is as necessary to them as the electricity that powers the lights.

H. K. E. S's S. S. Margol College of Arts, Science and Commerce, Shahabad favors an automated, straightforward ERP system for providing governance over the many components of the academic system. As a set of modules, various tasks that must be carried out for planning, development, administration, management of finances and accounts, and supporting students—including providing the ability to generate admission fees, managing exams and evaluations, issuing library books, etc.—have been taken into consideration. Each module is developed independently and put into use using ERP systems that have been purchased, such as Qualcampus, Tally, eLibrary, etc. The ERP system is used by all college stakeholders to provide e-governance. Through the ERP system, the college's whole operation is transparent.
